BROAD STREET

By Harley M. Leete, Jr.

LOOKING INTO MY CRYSTAL GRAB BAG, I discover that the Sacramento Bee has come up with the year's masterpiece of understatement. It's a headline in Wednesday's edition. In 18 point type, it blandly announces: NAIL DRIVEN INTO HEAD BY JAPANESE BOTHERS VETERAN. The veteran probably won't think there's much point to that story, but it certainly does hit the nail on the head!

ANOTHER HOT ONE comes from the Sacramento Union. In 24 point type, this two-column head reads: LABOR HASN'T BE SHACKLED YET BY TAFT, HARTLEY OR ANYONE. That's one way of writing a headline when short of space—just chop off a word in the middle.

TURNING OUR SCATHING SPOTLIGHT on the Marysville Appeal Democrat, we find that on Friday, August 22, they ran, on page 7 a picture of somebody we never saw before with the caption under it, "CANDIDATE—W. W. Esterly, Grass Valley mining and real estate man," et cetera. The chap in the picture is wearing glasses and getting bald. He doesn't look any more like Esterly than I do.

WE GAVE UP when we read a press association dispatch about a couple who were recently wed in Leitchfield, Kentucky. Seems the groom, age 99 and the bride, 39, got married August 14 after having been divorced 20 years ago. Their reason: found out they couldn't "live without each other." While you're filing that in your WE'VE HEARD EVERYTHING NOW department, leave us finish the item with the good word that the groom's 19 children, from four marriages, are aged from 70 to 8.

DEPARTMENT OF MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION: Sunday, September 14, members of the California Hydraulic Mining Association will view color photographs of the Bikini atomic explosions at their regular meeting. Just exactly how it ties in with the hydraulicers has got me, unless it is that the Baker bomb probably moved more water than all the hydraulicers ever born. Turning to the LIONS CLUB of Grass Valley we discover that it is the sponsoring organization of not one, but three groups of Scouts. The Lions are a guiding factor in the activities of Cubs, Scouts and Senior Scouts.

NEWSPAPERS ARE NUTS, you probably said after reading our first few items, and just to prove you're right, we're going to print an "ODE TO A HORNED TOAD" contributed to the Nugget by George B. Cooke, a character if there ever was one. Here goes:

With his belly on the ground,
Upon his head a horny crown,
—Just a little out of round—
Was the cutest thing I found.

SHERIFF RICHARD (the Bandit-Catcher) HOSKINS reports that the midnight hours are being rendered hideous in this area by the squawls, squawls, and general ruckuses of married couples whose hobby is apparently incompatibility. Hoskins would like to see inter-family warfare reduced in violence or at least confined to the daylight hours.

THE CONFESSED MURDERERS at present residing in the County Jail, it is reported, are getting "fidgety." Next on the Public Defender list and reported most likely to be chosen to defend the wicked pair is Attorney Lynne Kelly. Kelly is listening with a friendly ear to word of the possibility that a second lawyer may be nominated to work on the case since there are two defendants. The second lucky lawyer, we predict, may be Frank Finnegan.

Post War Farm Equipment Will Be Shown at State Fair

SACRAMENTO: The first complete showing in the west of post-war farm equipment will be on exhibit at the California State Fair in Sacramento. The fair opens next Thursday, to run through September 7.

The farm machinery show, declared by farm machinery manufacturers to be the "greatest trade exposition west of the Mississippi" will include 93 exhibitors of farm implements, using 157,000 square feet of display space.

Seventy-five per cent more machinery will be exhibited at the fair than at any previous state fair, according to the Tractor and Implement Club of San Francisco, sponsors of the show.

The equipment showing will be the only machinery exhibit in the state sponsored by the manufacturers, according to Ned Green, fair manager, who said that factory experts will be on hand during the entire fair to explain the use of the new equipment.

Complete showing of all the new agricultural developments since the war, including chemicals for crops and livestock, sprays, dusts, uses of electricity, farm welding improvements, and scores of other helpful ideas of interest to farmers.

Making its first public appearance at the fair will be a new all-utility, low-priced California-manufactured tractor, which small farm and ranch owners will find a welcome innovation in tractor equipment. Plowing, mowing, hauling, cultivating, discing, pumping, sawing, and numerous other uses will be shown to fairgoers. Designed and made for western farms, the new tractor will be limited to distribute in California until December.

Big Wine Exhibit Scheduled For Counties Bldg., State Fair

PLACER COLLEGE WILL START CLASSES SEPT. 2

AUBURN: Placer College students will begin class attendance next Tuesday, September 2nd, with more than 500 students attending classes under a faculty of thirty-five instructors.

Registration has been in progress this week for both old and new students.

Dean Harold Weaver held a faculty meeting Monday night in the Little Theater of Placer College, to iron out details necessary for the opening of instruction next week.

Six of the eight new class room buildings on the campus are ready for use, and the other two will be ready about September 15th. The structures are former government units, moved to the campus, and prepared to harmonize with present campus buildings.

They were brought to the campus under the Mead Act, providing buildings for colleges where veterans form a large percentage of the school population. The local authorities are spending about $30,000 to convert them into suitable class rooms and offices.

Busses will be run to the campus from Placerville, Folsom, Grass Valley, Nevada City, Roseville, Lincoln and Georgetown, as well as from all points within Placer Union High School district from Loomis to Dutch Flat.

Bus drivers were given a three day school of instruction in first aid on the Placer College campus this week, to qualify them to meet the demands of the new state law governing bus drivers.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

APRIL 30, 1851—Pard and I have got a couple of letters from home that are not pleasant. Father writes that mother's health is failing and advises me to quit and come home. Believes my being there would do her more good than any medicine. If I thought it was anything serious I would go, but while I am doing so well here it does not seem right to drop the chance to make a fortune. Anyway, I will wait until I get another letter. Henry North's death has been a great shock to his folks, but it would be worse if they knew the truth. Hetty wrote me the meanest kind of a letter, blaming me for not looking out for her brother, while it was a fact that I never knew where he was until I hunted him up in Sacramento. His murderer has not been captured. I guess nobody tried very hard, as it was a gambling row anyhow. Hetty throws me over, says she can't trust her happiness to me. That's like a woman, but I don't know but it's for the best and I am not taking her decision very much to heart.

After three weeks' rest mining comes hard for a time, but we are both getting used to it again. We cleaned up the ground that Gleason and Fisk had sluiced off and took out fifty-four and one-half ounces. That more than pays our expenses for the trip.

MAY 11, 1851—Nevada is all built up again since the fire; better and more substantial than it was before. They have also built a Methodist Church on the hill west of the town and have a regular preacher. It was pleasant to notice eight or ten women in the congregation. The Legislature made a new county and called it Nevada, and an election was held while we were gone to the Bay. Caswell was elected judge and Johnny Gallagher sheriff, so that now we have a regular law outfit. Gallagher has appointed Anderson deputy for Rock Creek district and we have a peace officer here with legal authority. If we get along as peacefully as for the past year, Pard won't be very busy.

Showed Pard Hetty's letter and he said, "Give her time; she don't mean it." He seemed to think I was not worried over it, which is true. I have got nothing to blame myself for and why should I let her play see-saw with me. I answered her letter and told her she was the best judge, and, although she had been unjust, it was for her to decide. Pard don't know how matters stand between me and my French sweetheart. I have not told him that she wanted me to marry and go back to France with her and I was almost persuaded to do it, and that she finally decided to make a visit to her home and come back in the fall and then we should come to some agreement. I believe I would have made the jump had it not been for fear of what my folks would say and now I am half sorry that I did not go. She wrote me just before she left on the steamer, but it is in French and I can't read a word of it and am ashamed to ask Pard to translate it.

MAY 18, 1851—We put in a steady week's work and got forty-one and three-quarters ounces. It's like drawing money out of a bank and we have three months more ahead of us if it all pays. The bedrock is nearly level, but rises up on both sides of the flat and there is no gravel on the hill. The water has gone down in Deer Creek and the miners are getting back into the bed, but it was pretty well worked out last year and isn't paying very well. The best diggings are up on Nigger Hill and Manzanita Flat and there is another place called Gold Run and a flat at the head of it that is rich. Amos Laird and Co. have most of the flat and I heard that for the past month they have been taking out on an average of one thousand dollars per day. There are three or four companies on the head of Brush Creek that are doing well. They are working ground that is from thirty to fifty feet deep, coyoting and drifting. Kellogg is blasting out a rock cut fifteen or twenty feet through the solid granite to drain the channel. He and his partner have taken out over seventy thousand dollars in the past year. Good diggings have also been found on Shady Creek and Badger Hill and there are four or five hundred miners working in that vicinity. It seems as if there was no end to it; we hear of strikes every day and in every direction and we are sometimes tempted to go prospecting, but our claim is too good to quit just yet. The miners generally agree that one should be content with ounce diggings.

Early in the week a miner came down from Sailor Ravine and told us that up on the ridge where the emigrant road comes through the mountains a party was camped and were in distress and that he was going into town to get relief for them. Pard, who is always first when aid for the sick or sore is wanted, volunteered to go with him and hurry along the supplies and suggested that I should take the horse, ride up where they were and hearten them up a bit by letting them know that a relief party was coming. I found them camped about eight miles up the ridge and they were certainly in a bad fix. There were three families, men and their wives and five children, one baby not a month old that had been born on the Humboldt desert. The mother was nothing but skin and bone, a young woman, and she could scarcely walk she was so weak and worn out. It was pitiful to see her cling to and try to nurse the baby, so forlorn that the sight would have melted a heart of stone. The rest of them did not look much better and one, a young girl fourteen years old, was sick to the point of death. They had four yoke of oxen, who were walking skeletons, and, to look at them, it was a miracle that they had succeeded in crossing the mountains, as they were in deep snow all the way until they reached their last camping ground, where they had got out of it and in a place where there was some grass feed for their cattle. Their grub had given out and they did not have enough provisions on hand for another meal. It was one of the saddest plights I ever saw, but I cheered them up and told them they need not worry any more as there would be plenty for them all before sundown.

SPORTSMEN HEAR REPLY FROM STATE FISH AND GAME COMMISSION

NEVADA CITY: The Nevada City Sportsmen's Club, at a recent meeting, voted to affiliate with the Sacramento-Sierra Sportsmen's Association. The decision came after the group heard Dave Jones and Harry Rosenberry, of the Placer Sportsmen's Association, explain the advantages of affiliation.

Secretary H. F. Sofge reported that a reply had been received from the Fish and Game Commission to the club's letter protesting an asserted differential in deer hunting licensing practices in Nevada and California. Executive Secretary E. J. N. Ott, Jr., wrote that a recent law equalized license fees so that Nevada hunters would pay the same fee to hunt in California as California hunters pay in Nevada.

Football Focus

John McAllister Lewis

Professional football is off to a good start this year already and my prediction is that in a few years baseball will be forced into the back seat. Both games are wonderful to watch or play but the public seems to lean a little more each year towards supporting the more breath taking, physical contact game of football.

Already I can hear the comments of the baseball loving public regarding paragraph one and being an enthusiastic supporter of both sports I would like to add that during the past year or two there has been displayed an increased interest in this fine sport in school, sandlot and professional circles alike.

Consequently we might arrive at a conclusion such as this: All-sports are getting increasingly popular and recreation is finally taking its well deserved spot as a necessary part of our daily lives. Professional football is in a slightly different category in that it is comparatively new on its present scale and is growing fast.

Unlike yesterday's pro contests the leagues and individual clubs are well organized and supported by fat wallets. The calibre of the players is vastly improved and the majority of the players are well educated athletes that still possess the college spirit and play to win.

San Francisco's '49ers lost a close one in their opener Sunday but displayed a great deal of promise. "The Wizard Frankie Albert and the boys played good football but the talent laden Dons from Los Angeles with already one game under their belts in which they defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, were just too potent.

Charley O'Rourke, formerly of Boston College and Fleet City played another bang up game and the fact that Angelo Bertelli has a tough man to compete with is conceded.

Forty-five thousand fans thronged to see the two highly impressive dreadnaughts tangle and none came away bored. However, there were a few disappointed, namely the '49ers as they were pre-game favorites.

One discouraging phase of collegiate and professional football this year is the fact that many outstanding college players have joined the professional ranks before finishing their collegiate work. Could it be that they like the money?

There are many supporters of the contention that college athletes, and for the most part husky footballers, are highly paid performers with AAU cards in their billfolds along with their monthly checks. There are exceptions, but generally speaking the financial concessions granted pigskin artists and other deserving athletes are on denominations only large enough to keep them in school, very few get rich. In fact if you visit a few campuses you'll find that many, and possibly most of the top notch performers are struggling financially.

Some alumni groups or even groups not associated directly with the houses of upper learning support their favorite boy performers on pretty style, why not? The schools themselves seldom do much supporting unless the concerned athlete is really deserving of a scholarship. Sports writers quibbled pro and con on this subject to public interest all summer.

Personally, and granted I am prejudiced, I think any athlete that can make a college team and at the same time maintain his scholastic standing is deserving of help. At any rate the current need is for more youngsters to continue with the higher educational circles, athletics provides a good channel.

To dip into the soup a little deeper your writer feels that girls with outstanding athletic ability should receive more helpful benefits and recognition. There I go, by trying to lend female appeal to my article I left my topic—football.

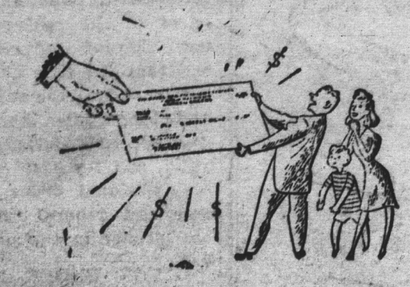
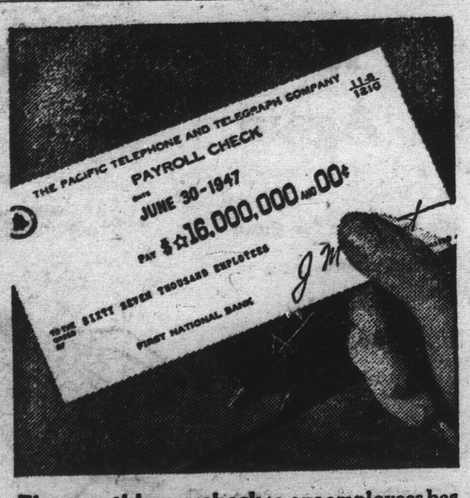
This check is also made out to you





The monthly paycheck to our employees has been getting bigger all the time. In a year's time it has grown from nearly $13,500,000 to about $16,000,000. Thousands of new people have come with us to help with the big job we must do to meet the West's tremendous growth . . . and our employees are getting the best pay rates ever.

The girls who run these check-writing machines are mighty important people . . . not only in the lives of our 67,000 employees . . . but in your life, too. For they write thousands of checks each month. And all these checks, as they go into circulation, add to the total prosperity of everyone living in the communities we serve in the Pacific West.

About 60 cents of each dollar you pay for service is for employees . . . almost all the rest goes for taxes and other operating expenses. A few cents of each dollar go to more than 700,000 people, many of them Westerners, whose savings built the telephone system. Yes, your telephone dollar serves you, the butcher, the baker and the whole community.

New Working Dollars . . . Millions of new dollars needed to build buildings and buy new equipment to meet the public demand for more telephones and more service do not come from telephone bills. New dollars come from people who are willing to put their savings into the business. We must earn enough to attract these new working dollars.

Pretty Doris Sexton, queen of the watermelon country, is demonstrating what in our opinion is the best way to display watermelons. This delicious vegetable is one of hundreds of California agricultural products which will go on display in the Counties Building at the California State Fair in Sacramento, August 28 through September 7.

Nevada County Long Ago - -

Floy Margaret Reynolds

20 YEARS AGO

The new T. H. Keller service station on upper Broad Street opened its doors to the public. The building, with a bungalow style of architecture and landscaped grounds, proved a striking addition to Nevada City's business interests.

Mrs. Charles Leiter was leaving on an extended tour of the east which was to take her to Boston and New York City.

A. F. McCallons and others of Yankee Jims sold the Washington Consolidated placer mine near Forest Hill to the Mayflower company. The property had been held by the original owners since the early sixties and had been extensively worked by the hydraulic process.

Miss Lucille Fogarty, Mrs. J. J. McCullough, Ray McCullough, Walere McCullough, Ruth Childs and Bain Crawford, all of San Juan, attended a dance in Alleghany given by the Alpha Hardware and Supply Company.

The Masonic Hall in Camptonville was being redecorated for the first time in over forty years. A severe windstorm which lifted the building eight feet off its rear foundation, cracked the paper and walls made the redecoration a necessity, funds for which were raised by a benefit dance. All of the lodge furniture was also being repainted, for the most part furniture which was given to the lodge by the Masonic Lodge of San Juan when they relinquished their charter. The first meeting of any consequence to be held in the new hall was to be a reception for Grand Master George L. Jones, when Gravel Lodge would entertain the other three lodges of that district along with a number of Masons from Grass Valley, Nevada City, Sacramento and Marysville. Emmett Costello of Nevada City and Louie Bullington were in charge of the painting and redecorating.

50 YEARS AGO

C. D. Tregoning of Grass Valley was making the pattern for the fourteen-inch Cornish plunger pump to be used in the Brunswick mine. The pump was to be cast at the Miners Foundry in Nevada City and when completed would be the largest in the county.

The Pacific Remedy Company, a medicine show, with a troupe of thirty, arrived in Grass Valley and pitched their tent on Mill Street near the burned district. A performance was scheduled for each night during the company's stay of three weeks.

Nevada Lodge No. 13, F. and A. M., was presented by the members with a large crayon painting of T. J. Rolfe, one of the oldest and most zealous members of the lodge as well as one of the oldest Masons in the county. Before the presentation, which was made in a most becoming manner by Fred Searls, Mr. Rolfe was called from the lodge room and during his momentary absence the portrait, beautifully framed, was hung on the wall where it was to remain. Mr. Rolfe was completely taken by surprise. After the meeting a collection was served by A. Tam.

Real estate offered for sale in Nevada City included an eight room house on Nevada street with a large lot, barn, well and city water for $1250; a lot on Park Avenue, 66 x 150 for $250; two new houses on Boulder street for $3000; a six room house with one and a half acres under cultivation, a cow, chickens situated within the town limits for $1000; and a ten room house on Sacramento street with a large lot for $1000.

Control of insects by creating disease epidemics among them is being studied at the University of California.
